HOLLYHOCK HOUSE DECLARED NATIONAL HISTORIC LANDMARK

The City of Los Angeles Department of Cultural Affairs' Hollyhock House, designed by famed architect Frank Lloyd Wright, is designated a National Historic Landmark by the U. S. Secretary of the Interior

LOS ANGELES—The City of Los Angeles Department of Cultural Affairs is pleased to announce that Interior Secretary Dirk Kempthorne has designated The Aline Barnsdall Complex, which includes the renowned Hollyhock House, designed by Frank Lloyd Wright for Aline Barnsdall, as a National Historic Landmark, recognizing its importance in interpreting the heritage and history of the United States.

According to the Department of the Interior, "the National Historic Landmark designation is the highest such recognition accorded by the nation to historic properties determined to be of exceptional value in representing or illustrating an important theme, event, or person in the history of the nation. Today, fewer than 2,500 properties bear this national distinction."

Built between 1919 and 1923, Hollyhock House is Wright's first Los Angeles project, and represents his earliest efforts to develop a regionally appropriate style for Southern California. This effort culminated in a remarkable combination of house and gardens. In addition to the central garden court, each major interior space adjoins an equivalent exterior space, connected either by glass doors, a porch, pergola, or colonnade. In 1927, Aline Barnsdall donated Hollyhock House and the surrounding 11.5 acres to the City of Los Angeles for use as a public park.

Hollyhock House, located in Barnsdall Park, is open to the public Wednesday through Sunday. House tours are scheduled at 12:30 p.m., 1:30 p.m., 2:30 p.m., and 3:30 p.m. Tickets can be purchased at the Los Angeles Municipal Art Gallery adjacent to Hollyhock House. General adult admission is $7, students and seniors $3, and children under 12 are admitted free of charge. For more information, please call 323.644.6269.
