Los Angeles
First City to Be Honored in the 29-Year History of The International Contemporary Art Fair

February 17–21, 2010
Madrid, Spain

Los Angeles, CA (January 22, 2010) – Over 60 L.A. artists have been chosen to represent the City of Los Angeles, the Guest of Honor at the 29th edition of ARCOmadrid_2010, the International Contemporary Art Fair, in Madrid, Spain, February 17 through 21, 2010.

For the first time in the Fair's 29-year history, ARCOmadrid_2010 is honoring a city, rather than a country, in a special section titled Panorama: Los Angeles, recognizing L.A. as one of the most prolific and vibrant contemporary arts centers in the international art world. Curated by Los Angeles-based independent curators Kris Kuramitsu and Christopher Miles, sponsored by the City of Los Angeles Department of Cultural Affairs, and designed by architects Johnston Marklee, Panorama: Los Angeles presents a timely cross-section of the diversity of work being made in L.A. in terms of media, genre, and inclination, and produced by artists who vary in background, generation, and notoriety. The artists are represented by galleries ranging from some of the most longstanding and established in Los Angeles to some that have opened only in the last few years, and span the city from the west-side, to mid-city, to downtown.

"Our selection process was in essence a search for vitality in all its forms," said Christopher Miles. "The list of artists for Panorama: Los Angeles is by no means comprehensive. It's more an attempt to be as true as possible to the idea of a panorama in a city that constantly surprises and never yields to a singular view. Los Angeles is not defined by a dominant 'school' or movement as other cities in other times have been. What defines Los Angeles as a city for art is the fact that the city has become, and continues to be, a major center for art production, distribution, and discourse during a time in which centers increasingly do not hold."

The 17 galleries representing Los Angeles are: 1301PE, ACME., Cherry and Martin, China Art Objects Gallery, Christopher Grimes Gallery, The Happy Lion, Kathryn Brennan Gallery, LA Louver, Margo Leavin Gallery, Peres Projects, Redling Fine Art, Regen Projects, Rosamund Felsen Gallery, Shoshana Wayne Gallery, Steve Turner Contemporary, Thomas Solomon Gallery, and Susanne Vielmetter Los Angeles Projects.

"Putting together this kind of project within the context of an international contemporary art fair is complicated given that curatorial projects revolve around artists while fairs are structured around galleries," said curator Kris Kuramitsu. "We are quite pleased with the roster of galleries participating in the fair. But this project began with the artists, and we have kept our eye on the artists. The Panorama: Los Angeles section contains great galleries, but it is about outstanding artists."

In addition, Madrid-based curator and writer George Stolz, working with Kuramitsu and Miles, has organized and coordinated a program of multiple satellite exhibitions featuring Los Angeles artists at venues and art spaces throughout Madrid.

"This is a great honor for the City of Los Angeles and all its artists to be recognized by this prestigious international arts fair. It is another indication of Los Angeles' place at the center of the global dialogue on contemporary artistic practice" said Olga Garay, Executive Director of the City of Los Angeles Department of Cultural Affairs.

"ARCOMadrid invited Los Angeles at the Guest of Honor for the 2010 edition to recognize and showcase the contemporary art scene there today. L.A. is a leading arts capital," said Director of ARCOMadrid_2010 Lourdes Fernandez. "Los Angeles and its artists are such an important voice in today's dialogue of contemporary art. We were pleased to have independent L.A. curators, Christopher Miles and Kris Kuramitsu, organize ARCOMadrid_2010's Panorama: Los Angeles, a sampling of the best of L.A. as seen from the perspective of Angelenos."

Los Angeles, Arts Capital

In 1957, artist Edward Kienholz and curator Walter Hopps opened the Ferus Gallery in L.A., marking the relative beginning of the city's modern and contemporary art scene. Since then Los Angeles has risen to prominence as a center of artistic production as well as a rich cultural landscape on an international scale, supporting artists, museums, art schools, alternative spaces, art fairs, and over 400 galleries. In the last five years, the art world has taken note of Los Angeles and its artists: in 2005, Los Angeles artist Ed Ruscha was selected to represent the United States at the 51st Venice Biennale; in 2006, the Pompidou Centre in Paris presented the groundbreaking exhibition Los Angeles 1955 - 1985: The Birth of an Artistic Capital; in 2008, the Broad Contemporary Art Museum opened on LACMA's campus, boasting one of the largest contemporary art spaces in the U.S. Now in 2010, Panorama: Los Angeles at ARCOMadrid presents an overview of the current art scene in one of the most important urban centers of today. Next up in Fall 2011, Pacific Standard Time: Art in LA 1945 - 1980, a joint initiative of the Getty Foundation and the Getty Research Institute marking an unprecedented series of concurrent exhibitions presented at cultural institutions throughout Southern California, will highlight post-World War II art in L.A. and further celebrate Los Angeles as an arts capital.
